From My Desk

by Maryann Thomas

Every now and again, it seems like there's an idea whose time has come. The time is right now for art in downtown Owen Sound. We have seen a number of new galleries emerge during the past few years to join the stalwart Tom Thomson and Owen Sound Artists' Co-op. And now there's a phenomenal nine art galleries in a three-block area! So what could be better than taking a Saturday to check them out. In fact, Saturday June 29 from 10:00am to 4:00pm all these galleries will be open with special exhibitions, programming, demonstrations and art talks. And door prizes. What could be better? Ignore the construction detours and take advantage of the free parking. Start your day off with a visit to the Owen Sound Farmers Market and then do the gallery hop. There's lots of great eateries for you to enjoy throughout the day. And drinkeries for the later on. Do the ArtWalk in downtown Owen Sound. See you here!

Wee Willi Winkels

Allison Brown

Wee Willi Winkels (1956-2014) is known and cherished in the Collingwood and Blue Mountains area. His achievements in the skateboarding and snowboarding spheres helped to revolutionize the sports, yet Willi's accomplishments have not yet been widely recognized. The Craigleith Heritage Depot is celebrating Willi Winkels with an online exhibit dedicated to his life and innovations. We are actively seeking pictures, stories, and more involving Willi and/or his inventions in order to broaden the exhibit through an online digital submission process.

Wee Willi Winkels' contributions to the skateboarding and snowboarding industries cannot be understated, and his innovations had a great impact on the sports. Many of the skateboards available in Canada from the mid 1970s to the early 1980s were made by Wee Willi Winkels Inc. in his Brampton factory. At that time brands such as Alva, Toft Designs, Hosoi, and Sims were also contracting Willi to make some of their boards. Willi and his friends tested early snowboard prototypes here on the slopes of Blue Mountain as well as on Mammoth Mountain in California, and beyond. Blue Mountain Resort has honoured Willi – later an instructor there – with a run in his namesake.

The Craigleith Heritage Depot seeks the public's contributions of memories and pictures of Willi Winkels and Wee Willi Winkels Inc. products to expand a new online exhibit about this legendary man and inventor with ties to the Blue Mountains area. You are invited to submit original digital content through an online submission form at <https://bluemountains.librariesshare.com/williwinkels/>, which accepts video recordings, sound recordings, word processed documents, images and more. Add memories of Willi Winkels and his skateboard team, as well as Willi riding his Motoboard in the GTA and later in the Blue Mountains and Collingwood areas. Share personal stories of riding a Wee Willi Winkels skateboard, or riding Willi's early snowboard designs on Blue Mountain.

"It has been exciting and humbling to hear memories of Willi from former pro skaters including Doug Teramoto and the first female snowboarder, Judy Winkels," explains Allison Brown, Museum Assistant at Craigleith Heritage Depot, who has been working on the project. As of April, over 50 items were viewable online, and more content will become available as people upload memorabilia. View the exhibit at www.library.biblioboard.com and search for "Willi Winkels." For questions regarding submissions or if you wish to share stories and memories in person, please contact the Craigleith Heritage Depot at depot@thebluemountains.ca or (519) 599-3681.

SweetWater Announces New Artistic Director

Paul Eichhorn

The SweetWater Music Festival Board of Directors has appointed Edwin Huizinga as Artistic Director effective October 1. He will lead SweetWater into the 2020 season and become Artistic Director Designate beginning June 1. Huizinga's appointment comes after Festival co-founder and current Artistic Director Mark Fewer took on the same role at Stratford Summer Music in late 2018. Fewer will be overseeing his final SweetWater Music Festival in September.

The multi-talented Huizinga is a familiar face; he has performed at the Festival several times and will once again this September. He was selected from an impressive list of candidates from across North America during a five-month search. SweetWater Board Chair Colleen Purdon admits it was a challenge to make a final choice but it was clear Huizinga was the perfect fit for SweetWater today. "Edwin is no stranger to SweetWater audiences and is an internationally-acclaimed musician. He studied with founding Artistic Director Mark Fewer and is committed to carrying forward Mark's legacy of musical excellence and community connection. Edwin is a warm and versatile musician, with boundless energy and a passion for bringing musicians and audiences together for a shared experience of music."

An accomplished violinist, fiddler, composer and an improviser, Huizinga has a busy international schedule performing with the folk and baroque duo Fire & Grace and internationally-acclaimed early music 12-piece baroque band ACRONYM. "I am honoured and humbled to be walking in the footsteps of Mark Fewer and cannot wait to continue to make SweetWater one of Canada's most incredible, unique music festivals for internationally-acclaimed artists. I'm absolutely thrilled that I will be able share my passion and creative ideas with music lovers in the Grey Bruce community and beyond," said Huizinga. M

At the DURHAM ART GALLERY D/A

Lindsay Glazier

The Reconfiguration of Similar Elements to a Separate Effect will run until July 7.

In this exhibition, artists Jill Price and Tonia Di Risio explore material wealth from different perspectives. Where Tonia engages with the image, its place in advertising and the production of material desire, Jill considers the end-of-life process of our textile goods, the material of our material desire. Tonia and Jill reconfigure similar elements to a separate effect by manipulating materials that are already in circulation and bound for the landfill or recycling plant. As garbage continues to pile up and the climate continues to change, it may be worth considering the source of one's material desires from a global perspective. When, if ever, is mass consumption ethical?

Throughout July and August, the Gallery will be running Rock, Paper, Scissors Summer Camp for kids. Check out www.durhamartgallery.com for more information and to register.

The Gallery is excited to welcome Jaclyn Quaresma, our new Executive Director + Curator. Jaclyn currently resides in Kimberley, in the traditional land of the Saugeen Ojibway Nation, which is represented by the communities of Saugeen First Nation and Chippewas of Nawash Unceded First Nation as well as the Métis Nation of Ontario, whose history and people are well represented in Bruce and Grey Counties. Her research is centred on non-dominant, multigenerational structures of learning and sharing. She is a graduate of the Masters of Visual Studies: Curatorial Program at the Daniels Faculty of Architecture, Landscape, and Design, University of Toronto. M

Tool Exchange

Stephen Hogbin

Intersections had a lively winter. Now it looks like spring has finally come and we are into early summer in the Owen Sound area. Don't worry, we "knocked on wood" as we typed about summer. In keeping with the season, we have scheduled our first Tool Exchange to give you an opportunity to sell those duplicate or never used tools that take up valuable space in your shop. After sorting things out for the coming season of projects, bring your surplus tools to Intersections and plan to collect a much needed tool from the exchange. If you are looking for a specific tool at a bargain price, this is definitely the time to visit us! Saturday June 15 will be the day reserved for this Tool Exchange. Come one, come all! For specifics on selling your tools, please contact us at intersections. gallerystudio@gmail.com. M

AT GREY GALLERY..... UNCOVERING/RECOVERING THE BONES

Robbin McGregor

I am one of those people who has never stopped believing in magic, fairy tales and the wonders of the unseen world. As a result, my imagination is always creating mythical creatures and environments from everyday life. I've always been a collector of bones, stones, twigs, moss and all things shiny so when I came across some skulls in local bee yards, I just knew they were destined to awaken other people's imaginations. I have been very lucky to be part of such a supportive community of people who encouraged me in my creative endeavours through gifts of bones, found treasures and kind words. Growing up, and to this day, I have always had an interest in ancient civilizations, folklore, mythology and different belief systems and these interests have shaped my art. Once I have a selection of bones and found objects, I lay them all out and wait for inspiration to strike. Sometimes things happen quickly, and I know exactly how they should go together; other times, I have to wait until the bones are ready to show me the next step. I know that doesn't really explain my creative process but truly they generally already know what they want to be. My hope is that with these pieces I am giving the viewer the opportunity to create their own story as to where these creatures came from, what their purpose was and what could have happened to them. Bringing a bit of magic to other people's lives is something I want to continue doing for the rest of my life. My work will be on display at Grey Gallery in Owen Sound beginning June 5. M

Searching for a Poet

Judy Beth Armstrong

The call is out again! Lauren Best is coming to the end of her two-year tenure as Owen Sound Poet Laureate so the search is on. The Owen Sound Poet Laureate is a program of the Owen Sound & North Grey Union Public Library. The successful candidate will be Owen Sound's seventh poet laureate, serving a two-year term, October 1, 2019 to September 30, 2021. Applications are due by Friday, August 16.

If you are a poet in Owen Sound or Grey-Bruce, with a substantial body of work (published or not), you are welcome to apply. Expectations are high for this part-time – though prestigious – position that comes with a modest honorarium. The poet laureate writes poetry about the area, composes poems for special events, does public performances, works with local poets and writers, and acts as literary ambassador for the city and the region.

The Poet Laureate is chosen by the Poet Laureate Advisory Committee (PLAC), comprised of three community members plus Library staff, and they are looking for a candidate with just the right combination of skills. "We want someone who's a good writer of course, but we're also looking for an ambassador, someone comfortable reaching out to our diverse poetic community and beyond," said Liz Zetlin, chair of the selection committee who was Owen Sound's first poet laureate. "As well, we're looking for someone who will share his or her passion for our community, poetry, and the literary arts." In addition, PLAC will be looking for compelling, creative ideas for the vision, and for the legacy project (environmental focus encouraged but not required) which should have a unique and lasting contribution to the community.

Zetlin's legacy project was the Poet of the Month features in the Sun Times, the Poets Laureate Map of Canada, which is unique to Canada, and her book, Addictions of a Poet Laureate. Zetlin was followed by Kristen Anderson, whose focus was to help young people find their poetic voices. Then Kateri Akiwenzie-Damm brought an aboriginal perspective to the position. For the next two years, Terry Burns explored the connection between poetry and theatre. As her legacy project, Burns edited an anthology of food-themed poetry called Mix Well, which featured work by 38 local poets. For the 2015-2017 term, Poets Laureate Rob Rolfe and Larry Jensen shared the position and developed a unique style of poetry and music and song. Their legacy project was a CD entitled Mudtown Songs and Poetry and a legacy performance, Metissage from Nawash to Mudtown: the untold stories of Owen Sound, on September 14, 2017 at Heartwood Hall. For the current term, Poet Laureate Lauren Best's focus has been to encourage children to express themselves through poetry. As her legacy project, she created Poetry Play Kits which contain activities for parents and children to have fun with language together, and are available to borrow from the Library's Youth Services Department.

The Owen Sound & North Grey Union Public Library hosts the poet laureate program with funding from several members of the community. The poet laureate's honorarium and other expenses for the current term are covered by donations from John A Tamming Law, David Madill, CFP of BMO Nesbitt Burns, Andrew Armitage and Elizabeth Warren. Never supported by tax-based funding, the existence of the poet laureate program depends entirely on donations from community members who see the benefit of having a local advocate for the literary arts. Anyone interested in becoming a sponsor of the Owen Sound Poet Laureate program is invited to contact Tim Nicholls Harrison, CEO at the Library at (519) 376-6623 or through owensound.library.on.ca.

Anyone interested in becoming Owen Sound Poet Laureate 2019 - 2021 can find further details about how to apply at the Library News tab at www.owensound.library.on.ca.

NEW BOOK + SIGNING:

SEA OVER BOW: A NORTH ATLANTIC CROSSING BY LINDA KENYON

After her marriage of 25 years ended, Linda Kenyon was determined never to put herself in the way of a broken heart again. But then she met an extraordinary man, and in an act of great courage – or foolishness – decided to sell everything she owned and sail across the ocean with him. Sea Over Bow: A North Atlantic Crossing is the account of that journey. As she faced the challenges of nature, Linda also found the time to reflect, and dream, and make sense of life. Sea Over Bow is an adventure story, but it is also about finding the courage to start again.

Linda Kenyon is a Canadian writer who lives year-round with her husband Chris Hatton on one boat or another – either their 43-foot steel sailboat, often in the Bahamas, or the boat they built in a meadow on their farm south of Owen Sound. She has written two books of flash fiction, You Are Here and This is a love song, sort of, as well as a book of nonfiction, Rainforest Bird Rescue: Changing the future for endangered wildlife, which won a Journalism Award from the Canadian Science Writers Association. Join Linda Kenyon for a book talk and signing at The Ginger Press at 7:00pm on Thursday June 13. Everyone welcome; no charge to attend.

Weather Bomb 1913:

Life and Death on the Great Lakes BY BRUCE KEMP

Two books in one special evening. Please join us at The Ginger Press for author readings and booktalks at 7:00pm on Thursday June 20. Bay of Blood by Andy Potter is a fast-paced contemporary mystery set in and around Wiarton and based loosely on the Tom Thomson mystery. Weather Bomb 1913 by Bruce Kemp is an accurate recounting of the causes and consequences of The Storm known as "the worst natural disaster ever to hit central North America." Both books, although very different, explore our relationship with water and its impact on those who live near it.

The victim in Bay of Blood is a famous painter murdered on July 8, 2017; Tom Thomson died on July 8, 1917. There are other similarities, but the painter in the novel is not Thomson, and he's not the main character. The novel's main character is OPP Detective Sergeant Eva Naslund. As one of the book's reviewers says, "Potter takes his readers on a fascinating 21st-century chase, with bells and whistles never dreamt of 100 years ago: cellphones, female detectives, Russian operatives, and shady Toronto art dealers." Andy won't elaborate on the suspects; but he will be on hand to talk about his book and sign copies.

There were at least 256 victims and a dozen ships lost due to The Storm on November 9, 1913. In Weather Bomb 1913, author Bruce Kemp has collected accurate witness reports, courtroom testimony and newspaper stories of the day, enhanced by the expertise of modern ship captains and weather scientists who contribute their expertise to help explain this horrendous "extra-tropical cyclone" and bring life to the tragedy to life.

Autographed copies of Bay of Blood ($24.95) and Weather Bomb 1913 ($29.95) can be reserved at (519) 376-4233 if you are unable to attend. M

Jane's Walk: Corkscrew City with Richard Thomas

Jane's Walks, an international celebration inspired by urbanist and activist Jane Jacobs, are citizen-led walking conversations encouraging people to share ideas, stories and thoughts about their neighbourhoods, discover unseen aspects of their communities and use walking as a way to connect with neighbours.

Prohibition lasted 66 years in Owen Sound, longer than any other city in Canada. Join author Richard Thomas for a walk around Corkscrew City (downtown Owen Sound) to learn more about the people involved and the lasting impact of prohibition on our community. Held at a leisurely pace suitable to most fitness levels and lasting about two hours rain or shine, the Walk is free to attend and open to all. This 5th Annual Owen Sound Jane's Walk will take place Saturday June 22, starting at 11:00am at The Ginger Press in downtown Owen Sound. M

THE ROXY REPORT

Melissa Monk

Owen Sound Little Theatre is thrilled to announce its 59th playbill. This year, audiences will rejoice with our fall musical, the comedy smash hit, Sister Act. Based on the beloved 90s film, Sister Act comes to our stage this November and is being directed by Corry Lapointe. The play plunges us into the life of disco diva Deloris Van Cartier. After witnessing a murder, she is placed in protective custody in the one place the cops are sure she won't be found: a convent. Disguised as a nun, her unique brand of funk is forced to go head-to-head with the convent's rigid lifestyle and uptight Mother Superior. Deloris finds her salvation in the church choir and breathes new life into the convent – accidentally blowing her cover in the process. Funny and exciting, this production will shine with powerful gospel music, outrageous dancing and the divine joy of friendship.

A Canadian play comes to our stage in February – West Moon, directed by Kathleen Cassidy. Once a year, on All Souls' Night, the occupants of a small Newfoundland cemetery are granted the ability to think, feel, remember and speak. Confined to their graves, the inhabitants talk amongst themselves and look to the newly dead for reports of their isolated coastal community. Amidst the usual gossip of small town life, dark stories of resettlement emerge. Heartwarming and full of power, laughter, joy and stubborn resilience, West Moon lends insight into the rich culture of 1960s-era Newfoundland outports that was nearly lost when their people were forced to move inland.

In late March, OSLT will present The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time, the Tony Award-winning play based on the bestselling novel, directed by Pat O'Connor. Uplifting and punctuated with humour, this inspiring play tells the story of fifteen-year-old Christopher Boone and his extraordinary brain. As a person with autism spectrum disorder, he is exceptional at math, but struggles with the social situations of everyday life. Upon discovering that a neighbourhood dog has been savagely killed, Christopher takes on the role of detective to identify the murderer. He soon finds himself on a dizzying journey that upturns his world with an array of profound truths.

The season concludes in June 2020 with Born Yesterday, directed by Kevin Haxell. In this sharp-edged satire, thug businessman Harry Brock heads to Washington, D.C., determined to take the town by storm and buy his way into a law amendment. His only liability? Billie Dawn, his beautiful but unrefined ex-chorus line girlfriend, who sticks out like a sore thumb. When Harry hires a local journalist to teach Billie poise, he gets more than he bargained for. A little education can go a long way, and Billie may be smarter and braver than her so-called friends give her credit for. A hilarious and timely send-up of politics and perceptions.

Give us a call at (519) 371-2833 or visit www.roxytheatre.ca for more details and to see our full 2019-2020 line up of comedy, plays, concerts and more. ☺

From the Community Foundation Grey Bruce

Stuart Reid

To celebrate our 25th Anniversary, Community Foundation Grey Bruce is establishing the Next25 Fund that will help us ensure the vitality of all communities in Grey and Bruce for another quarter century. While acknowledging our history, we look forward to the future. Our goal for the Next25 Fund is to raise $250,000 through donations and gifts in our anniversary year, through to June 2020. You can be part of the Next25 Fund with your donation. If 1,000 people give $250, we will reach our goal. Every gift counts. The funds will be endowed – invested forever – generating income for decades to come. To kickstart this effort, present and former members of the Board of Directors, along with a few key fundholders, have already contributed more than $28,000 to get the ball rolling. Thank you to these visionaries who understand the importance of community and want to provide for continuing health and prosperity in our region.

The Next25 Fund will provide future grants to charities and non profits with projects that address priorities that are identified in our Vital Signs® report. The Next25 Fund will give the Foundation the latitude to grant strategically based on local knowledge for local impact. We can do great things together. We want to empower all ages with opportunities in diverse education pathways and lifelong learning. We want to support a healthy, natural environment and the unique habitats along our shorelines and escarpment. We don't want to leave anyone behind, ensuring health, wellness and a good living standard for all people. We need to support community connections through capital investment in the places we come together, making sure they are accessible to everyone. Supporting strong arts and culture will ensure that the stories of all peoples of this region are celebrated and preserved. An eye to the future sees our demographics shifting and intergenerational change in the decades ahead. We need to ensure services are available to welcome newcomers and to aid their success in Grey Bruce. We want to support young people and entrepreneurs that are moving into area to start businesses and raise a family. We want to address Reconciliation and build strong relations and enduring partnerships between Indigenous and non-Indigenous peoples.

Help Community Foundation Grey Bruce support a vision for the future of our community with your donation. You can visit communityfoundationgreybruce.com to donate today. The Next25 looks bright and promising. We're here for good. ☺

QUAYSIDE CHRONICLES

Paul Thomas

The fisherman returns to the harbour with his catch and is met by an eager patron who asks him why he has returned so early in the day. "Clearly," the patron says, "if you stay out longer you will catch more fish and therefore make more money." "But I have enough," the angler replies. Bewildered, the patron tells how, for 25 years, he has worked so hard to now be able to afford time to travel and enjoy life with his family. The fisherman calmly shares his reality – that he can do just that already – why wait for 25 years?

When is enough, enough? In the words of William Shakespeare, "To thine own self be true" (Hamlet, Act-I, Scene-III). Let's make a pact: celebrate June, one step at a time. Let's find the pace of grace so as not to cram this month into a flurry of "I'll be with you shortly" and "as soon as I finish up..." or "I'd love to but..." After all, this is the month we've been waiting for. It's the month of the summer solstice, the longest day of the year. The full Strawberry Moon, on June 17, got its name from the Algonquin tribes who knew it as a signal to gather the ripening fruit of early summer. So what's your signal to ensure you harvest the best of what June has to offer? What could be better, for example, than cooking fresh fish over an open fire, followed by a piece of light sponge cake smothered in freshly picked strawberries and whipped cream? Clearly, that would be enough.

Nope, we can't solve the whacked up world we're living in but we can do our bit to shore up the local food scene, with friends and family, right here, right now. Lately I've been broiling up fresh lake trout from Howell's with a curry rub that has met with rave reviews. Crispy on the outside, moist and fluffy on the inside. Mix up 2 Tbs each of cumin, coriander, turmeric and garlic powder. Add to that 1 tsp each of cayenne, cinnamon, and ginger. (Of course grinding spice seeds and dry roasting them adds definite bonus points.) With a dash of salt and a pinch of sugar you've got the basics for a great rub.

And when was the last time you took a few hours to go berry picking? You see where I'm going with this, right? Stop! Smell the roses you've worked so hard to bring into bloom. Let the sensory overload of June fill you with the right to claim this bountiful month as one where you can soak in all its splendour. The alternative? "Oh I wish I had..." I rest my case!

And when you're ready for a local foodie road trip, why not check out the Bruce Botanical Food Gardens in Ripley? BBFG, founded in 2012, is a non-profit organization growing a diverse collection of sustainable, organic food plants of the rare, endangered and heirloom varieties. As a public learning centre and food-based tourist attraction, they offer a variety of programming and events based on issues surrounding food security and sustainable food production. Your can visit the garden from June 1 to October 1, Thursdays to Sundays from 10am – 5pm. It's a volunteer-run and there is a minimum suggested donation of $5. Produce is available in season.

This journey towards reawakening our priorities in the transformation to a cleaner, healthier, fairer community can take many twists and turns. Let June be the month to help you launch your "best ever" strategy to appreciate all that its catch has to offer. Eet smakelijk! **¶

AT SOUTH GREY MUSEUM FILMMAKER JAMES CULLINGHAM

Robert Iantorno

James Cullingham's film The Poet and the Indians addresses the pertinence of poet Duncan Campbell Scott to our time of Reconciliation in the aftermath of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. Scott, an internationally recognized poet and also the senior bureaucrat responsible for Canada's Indian policy, is one of the most intriguing yet least understood Canadians of the 20th century. Scott's legacy at the Department of Indian Affairs is still the centre of a raging national debate about indigenous rights over half a century after his death. This film explores the ideology of assimilation through Scott's experience as the principal proponent of Indian residential schools. Since 1960 when status Indians were accorded the right to vote, Canada has grudgingly and fitfully begun to acknowledge the human rights of aboriginal peoples. Meet James Cullingham at the South Grey Museum in Flesherton on Wednesday June 26 at 7:00pm. Admission is $7/$5 for members. Everyone welcome. **¶

Stop Motion Summer Camp | July 8-12, 1 to 4

FABULOUS FESTIVAL OF FRINGE FILM

Debbie Ebanks Schlums

After a long, cold spring, it's almost time for the 2019 Fabulous Festival of Fringe Film! The Festival promises spicy, gritty, and even gravity-defying programming in community spaces including the Hanover Drive-In, the Durham Arena, Garafraxa Café, Glencolton Farm and the James Mason Culture and Recreation Centre. We're really excited about the line-up of this year's programmers and artists who are taking risks by adding performance to film programming, poetry to essays, emotional discovery and personal hardship to public space.

This summer we are engaging more people connected to the region than ever before. Represented in this year's festival are filmmakers and young people including Julie René de Cotret (Hillsburgh); Joschi Shea (Durham); Chris Wong (Nawash/Cape Croker); and Howard Adler (Lac des Mille Lacs First Nation + Orangeville). All are committed to expressing their artistic and curatorial visions in a way that is purposeful, personal, and rooted in who they are. We are especially looking forward to premiering four new Saugeen Takes on Film currently under production by filmmakers Kelsey Diamond, Sharon Isaac, Tiffany Kewageshig, Keyanna Kimewon, Natalka Pucan, and Cassidy Ritchie. Their sensitive and personal approach to storytelling is generating highly artistic work.

We've made space to linger at #fabfilmfest. These sometimes-awkward moments before, between and after programs, are also opportunities for conversations and networking. So come as you are to the festival. We're sure you'll fit right into the messy, creative space we call the Fabulous Festival of Fringe Film. Many thanks to our funders: Canada Council for the Arts, Ontario Arts Council, Service Canada, Archive/Counter Archive.

What better time than now to support your local public libraries? Mark your calendar and plan to visit the Annual Book Sale in the Community Hall of the Hanover Civic Centre starting at 9am on Friday, June 14 and closing at 5pm on Sunday, June 16. Or, if you want a chance to be amongst the first people to check out the great selection of books, DVDs, CDs, puzzles and games, come and join us for our 4th Annual Preview Evening on Thursday, June 13; tickets are available at the Library. ART of the GARDEN: The GARDEN in ART

An exhibition celebrating the love of plants,
OPENING JUNE 5 at Grey Gallery in Owen Sound

What is the difference between botanical illustration and flower painting? You can visit Grey Gallery and judge for yourself during the month of June. Members of the BOTANICAL ARTISTS OF CANADA have been invited to exhibit their work, which combines art and science to document the precise form of plants. By way of contrast the exuberant floral paintings on display show plants within their natural environment, or as a component of a still life.

A portion of the sales revenue goes toward support of 'Among the Peonies' at Ginkgo Footprints gardens.
